

Patricia Foley Hinnen - Founding CEO of Capital Sisters International

Patricia established Capital Sisters International, a nonprofit investment fund, in order to finance business loans for impoverished women in developing countries and to promote gender lens investing. She created the first women's bond in the world to enable the general public to invest in micro loans. Each $1,000 zero-interest bond finances ten business loans and then the investor gets their money back (or reinvests in more women). Patricia launched the investment fund after decades of experience in international development with the microfinance industry, the U.S. Congress, and the State Department where she represented the United States in the 21-country Asia Pacific Economic forum for ten years as head of the APEC Women Leaders Network.

Patricia has raised $12 million in loan capital (half from donations and half from bond sales) under the Capital Sisters umbrella, financing 120,000 women's businesses in partnership with a dozen microfinance institutions in 25 countries.

In recognition of her longstanding work to promote economic empowerment for women, Patricia has received numerous acknowledgements and awards:
